BE CONTENT. Mistaken mortal, ever fretting, Grasping, grinding, roaning, getting. Be content!

If thou hast enough, be thankful, Just as if thou had at a bankful, Be content!

If for one cast thy lot but humble, Earn thy bread and do not gramble, Be content!

List the lore of learned sages— Those wise men of the Grecian ages, Be content!

Their reckoning up of all earth's riches. Was compass'd in one abort phrase, which is Be content!

The rich man gets with all his heaping, But dress and drink, and food and sleeping, Be content!

Though in sleep the rich men gain not, Poor men sleep when rich men may not, Be content!

Remember, thou for wealth who rakest, "Nought thou broughtest, not thou takest," Be con ent!

A Disloyal South Carolinian.

An application was recently made to Congress for the renewal of the patent of an easy chair, invented by a citizen of South Carolina. When the case came up in the Senate, quite a discussion ensued, during which Mr. Hale, of New Hampshire, made a decided hit for the applicant in the following speech, after which the bill passed without any diffi-

Mr. Hale—"I hope this bill will pass. In the first place I am very much in favor of the article that is patented. It is an easy chair. In the second place, South Carolina troubles the Patent Office so little that it would be very ungracious to oppose this application from the Palmetto State now. I hope it will pass."
We wonder if this was the same patentee of whom a good story was quite current winter before last.

Old Judge Evans, late a Senator from South Carolina, was a very earnest, sincere and venerable old gentleman, who, under an exceedingly gentle, mild and clerical exterior, concealed some very decided points of character, among which was an intense State pride, and a strong bias in favor of the institutions, and even of the weaknesses and defects, of his old State. To him South Carolina was the beau ideal of everything admirable, great and good. Her errors and defects were to him virtues and endowments; and though it was not in the nature of the good old man to hate anybody or anything, he cherished a decided and very South Carolinaish repugnance to the institutions. ideas and customs of New England. For any South Carolinian to possess any of the qualities, the accomplishments or tastes of the people of that section, was, in the view of the old Senator, a serious breach of faith and duty to his honored and beloved old Palmetto State.

Now, it happened that Judge Evans was applied to by a young South Carolinian, who had invented some mechanical contrivance which he desired to have patented. The young applicant intro-duced himself as the son of an old friend and fellow-parishoner of the Judge, and begged his favor and aid in obtaining his letters patent.

The venerable Senator, raising his spectacles, and fixing his eyes in wonder digging them all out and roasting them, Carolinian, in his mild but emphatic tone, interrogated him as follows

- parish, South Carolina, who was born in said parish?"

"I am sir," promptly and proudly responded the young gentleman.
"The grandson of General II——, who served under General Sumpter in the Revolutionary War?" "Yes sir," was the prompt reply. "Your mother was the daughter of Mrs. Nancy -, who set fire to her mansion in the Revolution, to prevent the British from occupying it?"

"Yes, sir," enthusiastically exclaimed the representative of one of our proudest families.

"And you," continued the patriotic old Senator, "have been educated at the academy —, in —, and instructed in the principles, duties, and knowledge proper to your position, your birth and family?"
"Yes sir," modestly remarked the now impatient youth.

"Then, sir," exclaimed the Judge, in a tone of haughty firmness and indignation. "how dare you turn your back upon all traditional principles, and ideas, and customs of your State, upon the sentiments and principles of your family, your ancestors and your countrymen, and degrade yourself to the level of a common wooden nutmeg Yankee, by inventing a machine!"

Carolinian, was so affected by the forcible manner in which the Senator presented the enormity of his conduct, that he abandoned his application, and re-turned to South Carolina with a view of standing for Congress in his district at the next election.

It is customary in some parts of the country, either upon railroads or steamboats, to exact only half fare from ministers of the different churches.

One pleasant day Capt. S. stood upon the upper deck of his steamer, tolling the

You Never Can Rub It Out.

One pleasant afternoon a lady was sitting with her little son, a white-haired boy, five years of age. The mother was sick, and the child had left his play to stay with her, and was amusing himself in printing his name with a pencil on paper. Suddenly his busy fingers stopped. He made a mistake, and wetting his finger, he tried again and again to rab out the mark, as he had been accustomed to do on his slate.

on his state.
"My son," said his mother, "do you know that God writes down all you do in a book? He writes every naughty word, every disobedient act, every time you indulge in temper and shake your shoulders, or pout your lips; and, my boy, you can never rub it out!"

The little boy's face grew very red, and in a moment tears ran down his cheeks. His mother's eye was on him earnestly, but she said nothing more. At length he came softly to her side, threw his arms round her neck, and whispered, "Can the blood of Jesus rub it out?"

Dear children, Christ's blood can rub out the evil you have done, and it is the only thing in the universe that can do it. "The blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth from all sin."-[Band of Hope

"It was My Brother's."

While passing rapidly up King street we saw a little boy seated on a curb-stone. He was apparently some five or six years old, and his well-combed hair, clean hands and face, bright, though _well-patched apron, and whole appearance, indicated that he was the child of a loving though indigent mother. As we looked at him closely we were struck with the heartbroken expression of his countenance, and the marks of recent tears on his cheek. So, yielding to an impulse which always leads us to sympathize with the joys or sorrows of the little ones, we stopped, and, putting a hand upon his head, asked what was the matter. He replied by holding up his open hand, in which we beheld the fragments of a broken tiny toy-a figure of a cow.

"O! is that all? Well, never mind it. Step into the nearest toy-shop and buy another," and we dropped a fourpence into his hand. "That will buy another, will it not?" "O! yes," replied he, bursting into a paroxysm of grief, "but that little brother Tommy's, and he is dead.

The wealth of the world could not have supplied the vacancy that the breaking of that toy had left in his little heart. It was Tommy's, and he was dead.

Preserving Sweet Potatoes.

A correspondent of the Genesee Farmer tells how he preserved sweet potatoes, thus:-

In the fall collect from the road the dust that has been formed of a mixture of sand and clay, and dry it thoroughly, by either placing it on a platform in the sun or in a kiln. Now take an old barrel, put in a thin layer of potatoes-one deep only-then another of sand, so as to completely cover them, &c., until your barrel is filled, if you happen to have enough to Keep the barrels, after being filled, in a dry place until frosty weather, then remove them to your kitchen loft, where they can have the beneat of the fire below to keep them from freezing, and also from becoming damp, either of which causes them to rot immediately, the upper deck of his steamer, tolling the last bell previous to her departure, when he was accosted by a serious looking individual in the following terms:

"Are you Captain S.?"

"I am, sir," said the captain, with a turn of the head and a quizzical glance.

"What is the regular fare to Louis-ville?"

"Two dollars and a half."

"Well, Captain, I am a Methodist preacher, what will you charge me?"

Apparently in a deep study for a moment, the Captain seemed to take the measure of our clerical friend, and replied in his peculiar, decided tone:

"Well, I reckon we shan't charge you a cent more than any body else."

Ladd, Webster & Co.'s, (Late Hunt, Webster & Co.'s,) SEWING MACHINES.

No. 6 West Fourth street, Cincinual). These Machines have been steadily advancing in popular favor * , the post year, and are now esteemed by all who have given them a trial as the "Ne Plus Ultra" of Sewing Machines. The evenness and regularity, and tightness of stitch made by them, has, more than anything else, tended to this result. Added to this is the undeniable fact of their simplicity and case of management, there being no band or cogwheels, as in some Machines, or leather pads and crocked needles, as in others. They commend thomselves to the dress-maker by the remainity of the feeding arrangement, which never puckers or tours the work, by the uniformity of stitch alike on both ty; to the tailor by their great strongth and dursbill-ty, tightness of stitch and capacity for using lines thread; to families, by the combination of all these qualities. Send for a circular and sample of work.
